“We challenged the FIFA development team to use the data collected from the motion-capture suits to power FUT in a way that we didn't think could be done before,” stated Purnomo Sugiyant. “HyperMotion technology allows us to create a more responsive and intense gameplay experience, in particular when it comes to a high-intensity, complete match.” “The original motion capture suit for FIFA 15 required two weeks of the game’s development to be done,” stated Bharat Ojha, Senior Producer of the soccer title at Fox. “With FIFA 22 we have fixed that and a few other aspects of FUT gameplay with the help of HyperMotion Technology, which, as you can see from the game trailer, takes the game into an unprecedented realism.” The in-game player movement is based on Real Player Motion data (RPM) collected from 22 elite players during a complete, high-intensity football match. RPM Motion data is collected in real-time to power all movement and gameplay interaction with the environment. “Players feel more like players with greater precision, speed and responsiveness,” stated Jonathan Mora, Creative Director at DICE. “We understand that this is a huge step for FIFA, but it's also a huge step for football on consoles.” The engine is optimized to reflect the complexity of motion and reactions that are fundamental to the sport. As such, the engine allows the player to dive, fake the ball, receive it from other players and switch between the ball, dribble and head. The football feeling is improved further with numerous other gameplay advances, including the Sprint Up model, sprint and sprint run and the ability to dribble on the fly. The Timing and Muscle models contribute towards more precise tackling and goalkeeper actions. Improved ball handling and control with the dribble assists helps create more realistic goalkeeper actions. The position of the ball on the pitch is scaled based on the distance between the goal and the goal post. The physics model offers greater control of the ball and more realistic energy transfer and lofting. Other improvements include a new uniform system, health, stamina, stamina regeneration, stamina increase, re-passing, runs and tackles. "I've grown up watching some of the greatest teams in football, including one of my favorite clubs, and to finally play on their home turf in FIFA 22 is amazing.

Just a great football game! I don't play online, but from what I've seen so far I like the move to let you control the players' movement with the Stick and since the player's no longer pitch on their head, you don't get the dizziness that some games used to give you. And I'm pleased that the ball no longer moves from player to player, like it used to in FIFA 17. I also like the 'ghosting' system so the other players still show up on the screen when you're passing the ball and I think the new control method over the ball will help you keep the ball in play. I'm looking forward to playing your game when it comes out in November. FIFA is a terrific game. It has its shortcomings but is nevertheless an absolute gem, especially in my eyes, where it is miles ahead of the competition. I am playing on PS4 with all global. Off course, I used the new guide to get back and let you know what should be your next move. I hope that you can read this guide and that you can help the people to win the very end of the game. The people who want to guide them from the start to the very end are different. You can not use the guide for all. It is also in the end of the FIFA season. You need to think carefully. First: you need to determine the second team who may have some chance of winning and after this, you need to guess where the opponent is going to be head after a goal and after this, you need to think of a move that you can not do at the beginning. You have to think of the moves that can be used in the game FIFA 22. My step was in hand. I am going to go as soon as possible to the FIFA game so I can have an opportunity to go again on the game. You can also do all the moving yourself. At the end of the game, you will determine the enemy team. You can even have the first choice. I like the starting the game as I can quickly go online and play a game immediately. It is just not possible for me to follow and wait until the end of the game. I am immediately ready to play. It is also nice that I can see my team in the game and I like it. I have missed this feature in FIFA 18. I can look for my team on the map, but I cannot see all of the players who are in the game. It is
